

The Board, as a decision-making body, is confronted with a continuing flow of problems, issues and needs which require action. While the Board is determined to expedite its business, it is also mindful of the importance of planning, brainstorming and thoughtful discussion without action. Therefore, the Board shall schedule work sessions from time to time in order to provide its members and the central administrative staff with just such opportunities.

Work sessions are meetings that are open to the public as defined by article 7 of the Public Officers Law.

The Board may adjourn to an executive session during any work session when the confidentiality of material, information or discussion is to be maintained.
