

Religious education is the responsibility of the home and church.

It is the policy of the Board of Education to not prevent or otherwise deny participation in constitutionally protected prayer in the District's schools, consistent with guidance issued by the United States Secretary of Education and applicable judicial decisions interpreting the religion clauses of the First Amendment of the United States Constitution.

However, religion influences many areas of education, such as literature and history, and religion's role in civilization can, and should be, properly taught. Moreover, it is proper for teachers to emphasize the generally accepted moral and ethical principles of all religions and to provide information to and the opportunity for students to study the forms of various religions. In other words, it is proper for teachers to teach about religion as opposed to teaching sectarian beliefs, although study of the Bible and other religious documents as literary forms may inform students concerning particular sectarian beliefs.

Teachers shall be permitted to expose students to information concerning religions and religious beliefs, but teachers shall not advocate, openly or covertly or by subtlety, a particular religion or religious beliefs.

Moral and ethical values are important in the development of a well-rounded individual, and development of well-rounded individuals is an encompassing goal of the district's educational programs and activities.
